STATEMENT OF RESEARCH

My research focuses on how governments design, implement and evaluate public policy, particularly the role of regulatory and institutional frameworks in shaping economic development, market governance, and policy outcomes in developing and emerging economies. My professional experience in legislative research has strengthened my interest in understanding how regulatory interventions work in practice and how evidence can be used to assess their effectiveness.

I now look to strengthen my quantitative and empirical research skills alongside my existing experience in legal, qualitative, and institutional policy analysis.
